A MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT OF KEAN UNIVERSITY

Dawood Y. Farahi, Ph.D.

Every fall our great pride is to welcome a new generation of students to our campus and accept the responsibility for cultivating their intellectual, cultural, and personal growth. Each year, more students are choosing Kean as the place to pursue their life goals. Even in the current economy, our students recognize that the path leading to and through higher education is still the best and most direct road to achieving an outstanding future. Over the years between fall 2007 and fall 2011, Kean University's total enrollment, including both undergraduate and graduate, grew steadily each year and increased by nearly 21 percent for the whole five-year period.

That is why, even in challenging economic times, your support for Kean University is more important than ever. We need to sustain the enthusiasm and ambition of our students with a bold institutional agenda prioritizing educational opportunities and capital projects. We need to keep expanding our academic programs, hiring more exceptional faculty, renovating and adding to our facilities. Our students are facing a global job market that presents them with great possibilities as well as significant challenges. It is our job to make sure that they are ready to take on both.

Your philanthropy makes so many things possible, and we could not be the growing, dynamic institution we are today if not for your awareness of the critical role you play in our campus community. On behalf of the students of Kean University, please accept my most heartfelt thanks for your interest, support, and generosity.

*Dawood Y. Farahi, Ph.D.
President, Kean University*

A MESSAGE FROM THE KEAN UNIVERSITY FOUNDATION BOARD CHAIR

Maria E. Bordas '74 '80

As members of the Kean University Foundation Board of Directors, we represent a diverse group of volunteers from different backgrounds and professional affiliations. The one thing that unites us is our common passion for Kean University and the work we do to support its mission: educating the leaders of tomorrow. We all share with the leadership of this University a vision to give students a world-class education that almost literally places the world at their feet.

On behalf of the Board of Directors, I am pleased to present this report summarizing the results of our institutional advancement efforts during 2010 and 2011. Many exciting things have happened in the past two years. We have launched a number of new initiatives, such as the Kean University Arts Council, developed by the Foundation to build awareness and raise funds for the arts and art education at Kean. We're starting to develop geographically-based alumni chapters, such as the Southern Florida Chapter, in an area where there are many Kean alumni. Also, we held our first major in-house phonathon, which raised almost $20,000 in funds to support the athletics program.

There will be much more to come, and we hope you will continue play a significant role in making possible the plans and dreams of our hard-working, deserving students. On behalf of the Kean University Foundation, thank you very much for your support.

MEDICAL RESEARCHER — SCHOLARSHIP FOUNDER

Christine Wilson H'11

Christine Malanga Wilson established not one but two scholarship funds at Kean University: the Mabel G. Holmes Endowment Scholarship, named for a beloved teacher, and the Divina Malanga Memorial Scholarship Fund, named for Wilson's mother. Both are earmarked for academically talented female students who are graduates of public high school in Elizabeth, N.J.

Together, Holmes and Malanga helped Wilson overcome the challenges of gender and economic status. Although she never realized her dream of becoming a doctor, Wilson's accomplishments as a medical researcher may have a much more indelible impact on humanity, with the possibility of new treatments for millions of sick and suffering people around the world.

To meet Wilson is to come into contact with a living legend and an authentic representative of the "Greatest Generation." At the age of 98, she is the last surviving member of a World War II-era medical research team that tried to find new treatments for malaria, which was felling thousands of Allied soldiers in the South Pacific. With Axis powers cutting off access to Cinchona trees in Indonesia — at the time, the only source of quinine—government agencies and drug companies began scrambling to find new plant extracts that would yield a new malaria drug.

Over a period of five years, Wilson and her team from Merck & Co. painstakingly tested more than 600 plants collected from around the globe. Dozens of promising leads were discovered — and then the war ended and the project was discontinued. But recently, with malaria-causing parasites becoming resistant to quinine and other medicinals, Wilson's research has come out of the archives and may yet play a vital, life-saving role in the ongoing battle against this insidious disease.

The oldest of five children from a working-class neighborhood in Elizabeth, Christine Malanga Wilson grew up in the Depression when food was scarce—and opportunities for advancement even scarcer. "No one can describe or appreciate how poor we were in the 1930s," she recalls.

But there was one thing Wilson was not poor in: ambition. More than anything else, she wanted to be a doctor. Fortunately, she also had an abundance of strong support from two loving women: Divina Malanga, her mother—her "superhero," according to Wilson—and Kean graduate Mabel Holmes, her second grade teacher and mentor.

Her mother, Wilson says, "was born in the wrong century, denied her potential because she was female and inadequately schooled." Divina Malanga had to quit grammar school to take care of her siblings, but she understood the value of education and encouraged her children to educate themselves and become self-supporting members of society.

Teacher Mabel Holmes (Newark Normal School, Class of 1921) would go on to become the first African American principal in the Elizabeth school district and a commissioner on the Elizabeth Board of Education. She encouraged Wilson, a talented student, to dream big, and set a positive example through her own hard work and perseverance. Wilson and Holmes enjoyed an enduring relationship that included invitations to tea and attendance at Wilson's dance recitals.

Because of her family's economic situation, Wilson decided on a career in medical technology instead of becoming a doctor. She attended Newark Beth Israel's Lyons Avenue School for Medical Technology, and after graduation worked in hospital labs for eight years. Eventually she landed a position at Merck & Co., where she stayed for many years — and embarked on the opportunity of a lifetime as one of the few women in her field when she became the supervisor of the malaria drug study team in 1943. Her pioneering work on the potential benefits of about 600 botanical specimens was published in the journal Lloydia—a predecessor to the Journal of Natural Products — in 1947.

With the war over and quinine once again available, the research was shelved for more than 65 years. Recently, however, it was rediscovered as a potential resource for people who might be resistant to anti-malarial drugs. Scientists are once again searching for new formulas and believe some of the plants in the original Merck study may be quite promising. As a result, Wilson—the last living member of the research team—has enjoyed a burst of publicity and attention from biologists, biochemists, and science-focused journalists.

Wilson herself is still blooming. She remains an astonishingly keen, involved spectator of the scientific world. Although Wilson never attended Kean herself, she has always had great admiration for the alma mater of her favorite teacher, Mabel Holmes; she recently toured the laboratories at the STEM Building and was very impressed.

The scholarships Wilson established make it possible for other young women to receive the caliber of education that she and her mother never could. In recognition of her accomplishments and her generosity to the University, Wilson was awarded an honorary Doctor of Science degree at Kean's undergraduate commencement on May 12, 2011. In a riveting speech, she quoted Pope John XXIII: "Do not walk through time without leaving worthy evidence of your passage." No one can accuse Wilson of not having done so herself during her long and fruitful life.

LEADERS — MOTIVATORS — PHILANTHROPISTS

Jim Hynes '63 H'09 and Carole Hynes

The Hyneses' generosity toward Kean University is unquestionably in a class by itself. Their many gifts and acts of philanthropy have included scholarship endowments and the donation that created the Jim Hynes '63 Baseball Stadium, dedicated in 2002. Their commitment to Kean is probably surpassed only by their commitment to their family and to each other. These partners in life, as well as in philanthropy, are truly a "team." It seemed only appropriate that after the Carole Hynes Global Scholars Endowment was created, and when the University's new field house—directly adjacent to the Jim Hynes '63 Baseball Stadium—needed a name, the name chosen should be that of Carole Hynes. Now the two structures stand together, a testament to the Hyneses' enduring relationship with each other and with Kean University.

Both Jim and Carole were born into families of modest means. Jim is a native of Elizabeth, New Jersey. His father, as a 10-year-old fifth grader at St. Patrick's Grammar School, decided he'd learned all he needed to know and quit school. His mother, after World War II broke out, traded in her kitchen apron for a factory coat. As a young man, Jim started out working for the Pennsylvania Railroad in New York City, earning extra money on the weekends as a ceramic tile setter. Though the railroad offered a solid job with a future, Jim wanted more from life. Encouraged by a cousin who was a graduate of Kean (then Newark State College), Jim applied for admission in 1958 but was rejected. He remained persistent and reapplied the following year, gaining admission to the newly formed industrial arts program.

"This was a shock to my parents," Jim notes. "When I already had a well-paying job, why would I leave it to attend college?"

His parents' doubts were reinforced when Jim was put on academic probation. "I fully expected to be dropped from school," he said. But he was given another chance and succeeded in improving his grades. By his junior year, he was playing second base on the varsity baseball team as well.

This athletic involvement almost jeopardized Jim's college career when, in May 1962, he sustained a compound fracture of his leg during a ball game. He spent over a month in the hospital and had to take the rest of the summer off to recuperate. He was unable to work at his summer job, which helped pay his tuition. But thanks to a scholarship awarded by Kean, Jim returned confidently to school not only to complete his senior year coursework, but to be elected president of the senior class. This turn of events had a lasting influence on Jim and his "attitude of gratitude" to Kean that still endures today.

After college, Jim landed a job with Union Carbide's upper Midwest states office, located in Minnesota. It was here that Jim met Carole at a singles' dance in the winter of 1967. "I cleaned the snow off her car and took her to a diner for tea and bagels," he reminisces.

Born and raised in Robbinsdale, a suburb of Minneapolis, Carole grew up in a traditional, close family that lived a simple but happy life. "My father contributed to worthy cases, and both of my parents volunteered at the local hospital," Carole recalls. This early introduction to good works instilled values that she would carry into her adult life.

During high school, Carole discovered an enthusiasm for the French language, literature and culture. She continued to pursue these passions with a summer study abroad at the University of Grenoble in the French Alps and at the University of Minnesota, where she earned a bachelor's degree in French education and a master's in French literature. She thought about taking her credentials to California to pursue a teaching career, but instead, having met Jim Hynes, decided to accept a teaching position closer to home.

Meeting Jim also provided her an introduction to his alma mater. "In the late 1960's, Jim brought me east to meet his family and to tour Newark State," she says. "As we drove through campus, Jim was so excited and proud. I was very impressed by his attachment to his school and the impact that it had on his life."

Jim and Carole were married in 1970. Jim moved on from Union Carbide to Shamrock Industries, a plastics fabricator. In 1986, Jim founded his own company, Churchill Plastics, a prominent plastics recycling company. Carole taught French for 18 years in the local school district, with time off to raise their two children, Matthew and Erin. Her interest in all things French remained strong; she eventually studied French cooking at Ecole de Cuisine La Varenne in Paris and at Crillon Le Brave outside Avignon, France. This led to an amateur niche as a teacher of French regional cooking.

Over the years and across the miles, Jim always remained loyal to Kean University. "Kean changed my life and I'm dedicated to change Kean for the better in return," he says. This is a promise both Jim and Carole have kept. In 1997, they paid tribute to Jim's first baseball coach, George Hudak, by establishing an endowment in his memory. Two years later, they donated a gift that enabled the construction of the state-of-the-art baseball stadium named in Jim's honor. In 2004, Jim became chairman of the Kean University Foundation Board of Directors, serving until 2008.

In recent years, the Hyneses have established two new scholarships. The Sigma Beta Tau Annual Scholarship, also supported by many SBT brothers, is given to deserving students in Jim's fraternity. The Jim Hynes '63 Annual Scholarship recognizes a male Kean student who resides in Elizabeth and has served in the armed forces.

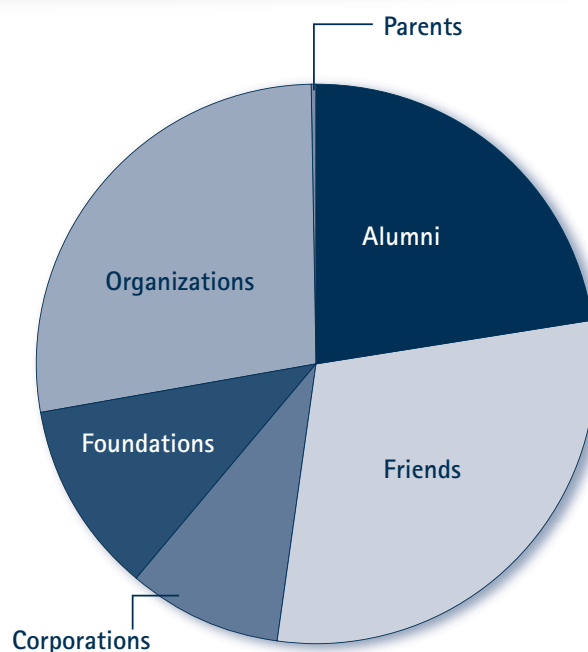

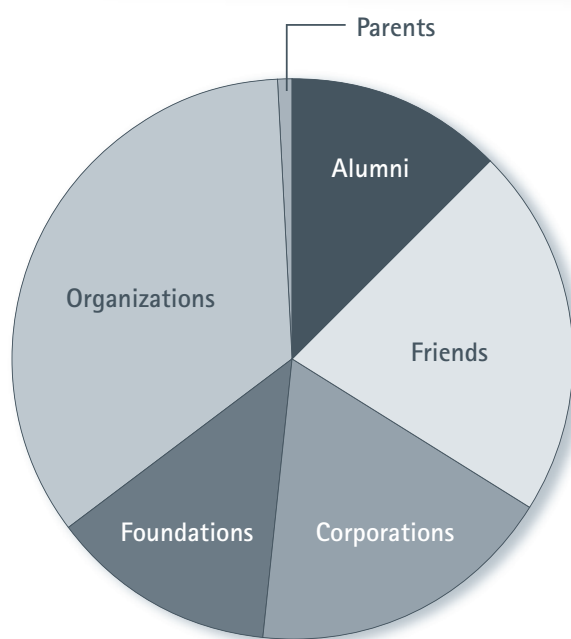

Carole feels a strong bond with the university and was delighted when the field house on campus was named in her honor. "Over the years I've come to know why Jim is so loyal to his alma mater, and I know how his life path changed because of his education and leadership opportunities experienced here," she says. "I have also developed a loyalty and respect for the entire Kean community and consider it my extended family."

The Carole Hynes Field House includes concessions for all of the surrounding venues, as well as a second-floor weight training facility. The large windows of this fitness center appropriately overlook the Jim Hynes '63 Stadium.

"Giving back to Kean connects me to leaders, to students, and to the future," Jim says. "It's not just about writing a check. It's about nurturing talent and potential and enriching the lives of students, many of whom started out just like Carole and me."

ATHLETE — LEGEND — PHILANTHROPIST

In Memoriam: Abner Benisch '40

Kean University notes with great sadness the passing of Abner Benisch, Class of 1940, on June 13, 2011, at age 92. Benisch, a scholar-athlete who captained both the tennis and basketball teams, graduated with a degree in elementary education and went on to become a prominent leader in New Jersey's insurance industry. After he retired, Benisch demonstrated an ongoing philanthropic commitment to Kean University, establishing the Abner and Norma Benisch Endowed Scholarship to inspire and support deserving Kean business and education majors.

Benisch had been present during Homecoming 2010 when the Kean University Athletic Hall of Fame building was renamed the Benisch Athletic Hall of Fame. During the dedication, Benisch, his family, Kean faculty, staff, student athletes, and alumni looked on as his young great-grandson Evan unveiled the large sign and video display created in his honor.

"The greatest thrill for me is that my family is here to see this," said Benisch. "I'd like to thank you all for showing up today. I thank you from the bottom of my heart."

Benisch had traveled a long road leading from humble beginnings to university benefactor. He lived in Essex County all his life, starting out in modest circumstances. In the wake of the Great Depression, he was admitted to Newark State Teachers' College (later to become Kean University). He was the first in his family to graduate from college.

Energetic, competitive, and determined, he was both an outstanding student and an extraordinary athlete, competing in tennis and basketball and captaining both teams. He was inducted into the University Hall of Fame in 1983.

When asked to share his fondest memories of college, Benisch responded: "The archway above the Broadway entrance of the campus, which reads 'Who Dares to Teach Must Never Cease to Learn,' is something that deeply inspired me." His favorite professor and mentor was Willard "Bill" Zweidinger, a former Olympic swimmer.

After graduation, Benisch served in the U.S. Army, both stateside and abroad. He returned to civilian life with officer status and entered the insurance business. After working for others, he opened Benisch & Company in Livingston in 1951; it grew to be one of New Jersey's most successful insurance firms (now run by his son, Joel Benisch).

Benisch earned numerous awards and took a leadership role on the Governor's Committee and Commission on Insurance. He also spearheaded the development of examinations and regulations for professional licensure and the first formal requirements for New Jersey insurance producers.

"He was particularly proud of being the third person in New Jersey to receive both the Chartered Life Underwriters (CLU) and Chartered Property Casualty Underwriters (CPCU) licenses," his wife, Norma, said,

"and of the industry speaking engagements [he participated in] in England and Scotland."

But when asked to define his greatest success, Benisch replied: "The fact that I have a wonderful family." And the entire Benisch family still feels connected to his alma mater.

"Abner always felt drawn to the needs of disadvantaged students. He always saw a bit of himself in those he helped," Norma explained. "He felt a genuine bond."

Benisch himself once noted, "I truly appreciate the value of a higher education. It's important to mark that part of my history, because that is why I support current and future generations of students."

THE NEW JERSEY CENTER FOR SCIENCE, TECHNOLOGY AND MATHEMATICS (NJCSTM/STEM BUILDING)

A Quantum Leap in Science Education

STUNNING ACHIEVEMENT. OUTSTANDING VENUE. SPECTACULAR, SUSTAINABLE ENVIRONMENT.

Dedicated in June 2010, The Kean University STEM building is the breathtaking new setting for our visionary, multi-disciplinary curriculum. In this grand new venue, we continue to develop top future teacher-leaders, applied science professionals, and a devoted alumni community.

The building is a living tribute to science and architecture. Beautifully designed and LEED Gold certified, it embodies sustainability and green integrity. The huge atrium is designed to impress: Award-winning "black benches" and helix-curve staircase are memorable themed attributes; grand catered-event and restaurant spaces are capacious and elegant. The auditorium is finished in non-toxic, low-e furniture. A glass curtain wall harnesses solar energy for heating and cooling.

STEM offers magnificent, custom-designed classrooms, conference rooms, community research labs, the showcase flex lab, and much more. Instrumentation and tools include PUMA, the University's supercomputer and CAVE, a 3D data visualization immersive environment constructed in February 2011 (both built with an NSF grant to Professor Dave Joiner). There is a pharma-grade Orbitrap Mass Spectrometry suite, a Nuclear Magnetic Resonance (NMR) instrument, plus a vast array of analytical chemistry instruments to be used along with biological equipment, affording analysis of DNA, proteins, and cells.

These are a few of the students who have chosen Kean University because of its NJCSTM program.

SCOTT LAFONTAINE CLASS OF '11 (5-YEAR MASTER'S PROGRAM)

Scott LaFontaine is one of NJCSTM's shining stars, with a double major in molecular biotechnology and chemistry. Upon arriving at Kean in 2008, his focus was initially inclined more toward soccer than science; but he fell in love with Kean University's academic science programs, and looks forward to pursuing a Ph.D. in the sciences.

Scott has received Foundation scholarships for every year he has attended Kean University. He has also won student organization awards and a paid National Science Foundation internship in organic chemistry at North Carolina State University. He is very grateful to his advisors and professors for opening doors of opportunity and helping him on his path to realizing his dreams.

Scott LaFontaine '11 with Albert and Helen Mazurkiewicz, proud benefactors of the Albert and Helen Mazurkiewicz Endowed Scholarship.

HANNAH RYAN CLASS OF '13 (5-YEAR MASTER'S PROGRAM)

Hannah Ryan hails from Monmouth County's Academy of Allied Health and Sciences. She received a full scholarship to NJCSTM, where she met two chemistry professors and a professor of chemistry education who kindled a love for the subject. As a chemistry education major and research assistant, she is currently working on a research project studying "Chemistry Anxiety" among students; next up will be a research project on math and science professional development in New Jersey schools. Hannah hopes to eventually pursue a Ph.D. within this subject framework.

In addition to her Foundation and New Jersey state scholarships, Hannah has won the Kevin and Beth Alton Endowed Scholarship, which is particularly targeted at students in the field of chemistry. She is on the Dean's List, serves as a residence assistant (R.A.), ushers at Kean's Wilkins Theater, and soon expects to start working as a chemistry tutor in the NJCSTM department.

Hannah Ryan '13

MOLLY GILL CLASS OF '12 (5-YEAR MASTER'S PROGRAM)

Molly Gill always wanted to be a teacher, but couldn't decide between math or chemistry. But with a little help from two chemistry teachers (one in high school and one at Kean), she decided she wanted to focus on chemistry education, possibly earn a Ph.D., and someday teach at the college level.

Molly's initial encouragement came from her high school sophomore chemistry teacher, who told her about Kean. She attended a summer "boot camp" at the university, where she met professors Dil Ramanathan and Laura Lorentzen, and became convinced that studying chemistry at NJCSTM was a perfect fit.

The recipient of a tuition scholarship, Molly is now a junior who has been on the Dean's List every semester. She's also a member of the Phi Kappa Phi honor society. Molly looks forward to the day when she can pay back the teachers who inspired her by being an inspiration to others herself.

CHEMISTRY — EDUCATION — PHILANTHROPY

Kevin '73 and Elizabeth (Beth) '70 Alton

Kevin and Elizabeth Alton are the benefactors of the Kevin and Beth Alton Annual Scholarship as well as an endowed scholarship with the same name. The Altons' intent is to provide assistance to academically qualified students who have financial need and are focusing in the sciences, especially chemistry.

The Altons, who met at then-Newark State College in 1967, have been a couple since taking the same health class during the second semester of their freshman year. Beth graduated with a degree in Elementary Education in 1970, but Kevin took a little longer to finish. "I kept switching science majors," he laughs. He finally settled on Chemistry/Physics when the program became available, and graduated in 1973. They have been married since February 18, 1972, and have two children, Rebecca and Scott.

Kevin and Beth both came from blue-collar parents and were the first in their immediate families to graduate from college. Kevin grew up on a farm in Somerset, New Jersey, while Beth, originally from Maplewood, was one of a set of triplets. Her Scottish-born mother stayed home to raise four girls, and her father worked long hours as a baker. Neither family could afford to send their children to college, so like many students of their generation, they had part-time jobs and relied upon loans or scholarships for financial aid.

Kevin chose to attend Kean because of its comparative affordability: "I earned high academic marks in high school, and I was accepted to many pricier colleges," he notes. Beth enrolled at Kean because she wanted to be a teacher and felt that there was no better place in New Jersey for that training.

Both agree that their fondest college memories include the excellent professors they studied under and the long-lasting camaraderie derived from the sisters of Nu Theta Chi and brothers from Sigma Beta Tau. "It was the best four years, leading to a lifetime together," recalls Beth. To this day, the Altons still maintain contact with many college friends like Edward A. Esposito '69 '72, currently president of the Kean University Alumni Association.

Kevin and Beth are retired; Beth worked at St. Barnabas Medical Center for 27 years, while Kevin spent an entire career conducting basic pharmaceutical research. His 30-year tenure at Schering-Plough Research Institute resulted in over 100 publications, several patents, and the prestigious "Discoverers Award" in 2006 from the Pharmaceutical Research and Manufacturers Association. The couple now enjoys traveling to "warm, remote beaches," in Kevin's words. He is also an avid amateur astronomer who maintains a website dedicated to astrophotography and variable star research (www.underoakobservatory.com).

The Altons' daughter Rebecca resides in Indiana and is well on her way to completing a Ph.D. in public health at Indiana University. Their son Scott graduated from the University of Kansas and now lives with his wife and son close to his parents in Morris County; this pleases both grandparents, who are delighted to be near their only grandchild.

The Altons are grateful to have received their degrees from Kean, and heartily agree when asked why it is so important to support the school. "We both depended upon outside aid to finance our education and understand the importance of scholarships from personal experience," Kevin explains. "Fortunately, we are at a point in our lives when we can give back." As members of the first generation of college graduates in their respective families, Kevin and Beth recognize that they were not so different from much of Kean's demographic today.

Their sincere hope is that their support will make it possible for more talented students to study chemistry and other sciences, and thereby provide a larger pool of local candidates for research organizations that are now compelled to look abroad for qualified employees.

"Great students should be rewarded. They should be able to go to college if they want to advance their education," Beth says firmly.

A MESSAGE FROM THE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION PRESIDENT

Edward A. Esposito '69 '72

As president of the Kean University Alumni Association, I want to thank all those who have lent their support to the University over the past two years. Alumni play an indispensable role in providing the means for the scholarships, facilities, programs, and faculty that have made this institution a source of World-Class Education.

Kean University gave us alumni our start, and we benefited from the assistance of many of those who had gone before us. Now it's our turn to help a new generation of students. These young men and women are strivers, with goals and dreams, and they are willing to put in the hard work that they know is necessary to take them where they want to go in life. Many of them come from families without the precedent of higher education, so we can acknowledge their courage and determination by helping to make sure that they are getting out of Kean at least as much as they're putting in.

I hope you will continue supporting Kean to the greatest extent possible. I myself feel a debt of gratitude to the University and am happy to have the opportunity to repay it at least in part. I ask you to join me in working to ensure Kean's future as a place where students come to transform themselves into the people they want to be.

*Edward A. Esposito '69 '72 MA
President, Kean University Alumni Association*

SUPPORTING THE CAMPUS COMMUNITY

Annual Gala

Each year, more than a thousand alumni, friends, faculty, and staff mark their calendars for two fabulous events that support the university community: the Annual Gala and the “Cougar Cup” Golf Classic. Both occasions provide attendees with the opportunity to celebrate Kean in style—and raise vitally needed funds for student priorities—while networking with friends, colleagues, and fellow benefactors.

The Annual Gala is the biggest fundraising event of the year for the university. Guests are treated to a wonderful evening of cocktails, dinner, live music, and dancing in return for their investment in tomorrow's teachers, scientists, engineers, artists, and businesspeople. Over the last few years, Gala venues have included the magnificent STEM (Science, Technology, and Mathematics) Building on the Kean University campus, and the Ocean Place Resort and Spa in Long Branch. Some Galas have featured special guest personalities such as Bill Nye, a/k/a “The Science Guy”; Richard Blais from “Top Chef” and the “Blais Off” show on the Science Channel; and Rick Bayless, celebrity chef, restaurateur, and author.

One important purpose of the Gala is to honor exceptional individuals for their contributions to society and/or to Kean University. Recent Gala honorees have included Olympic gold medalist and humanitarian Ron Freeman '72, and 2009 Nobel Prize winner George E. Smith, co-inventor of the CCD (charge-couple device) sensor.

SUPPORTING THE CAMPUS COMMUNITY

Cougar Classic Golf Outing

Every September, the prestigious Fiddler's Elbow Country Club in Bedminster, New Jersey, plays host to the Kean University Golf Classic—the "Cougar Cup." Golfers and non-golfers alike turn out for fine food and cocktails, contests, raffles, live music, table games, and special presentations. The golfers get to spend a day on the links battling for the Cougar Cup trophy. Past prizes have included a round of golf at Baltusrol Golf Club; an iPad package from Apple; a gift card from Tiffany & Co.; gift certificates to the Short Hills Hilton; and a fantasy sports package with tickets for several professional teams, including the Giants, Devils, and Yankees. Donors who frequently attend charity golf events have said that the Kean golf outing ranks among the very best and most thoroughly enjoyable fundraisers of its kind.

KEAN UNIVERSITY CAMPUS

Ursino Restaurant Opens

There is a new restaurant on campus as of fall 2011!

If you haven't had a chance to visit yet, go sample a meal at Ursino Restaurant, located on the ground floor of Kean's Science, Technology, & Mathematics (STEM) Building. Its grand opening was on October 26, 2011. Come enjoy American cuisine at its finest in this 110-seat, two-level space. The culinary emphasis is on fresh, locally grown produce, including herbs harvested right from the four-acre garden at Liberty Hall. The menu features a vast assortment of meats, cheeses, and fish from dairy and livestock farms throughout the state.

Ursino—the historic name of the home of the Livingston and Kean families, now known as Liberty Hall—has been meticulously designed to combine stunning interiors and exteriors, an amazing view, and a highly creative menu into a singular dining experience. The kitchen is presided over by Executive Chef Peter Turso, a leader in the culinary "farm-to-table" movement whose résumé includes stints at Restaurant Nicholas, Napa Valley's French Laundry, and the venerable Stage House Tavern.

The interior features glass windows with plenty of natural light, a quartz bar, and an open kitchen with a wood-burning hearth. The ceiling includes a sweeping radius designed to evoke the grist mill that formerly operated on the Liberty Hall grounds. The first floor a la carte dining area seats 80 people and has a wine suite for special tasting dinners. There is seating for 30 people on the second floor, where you can savor a glass of wine as you sit in the bar and lounge area, choosing from a variety of international and domestic brands. In the summer, enjoy dining outside, where you can also gain access to STEM's rooftop reception area and take in the views of the Manhattan skyline.

Since its opening, Ursino has earned very enthusiastic reviews from some of the area's leading publications including New Jersey Monthly magazine and NJ.com's Inside Jersey, which declared, "[Ursino is] a refined symbol of worldly success, one that not only promotes the lofty goals of sustainability and ecological conservation, but also cheers the skills of culinary expertise and modernist cuisine. It's worthy of applause."

The dress code is business/dressy casual. Valet parking is available Thursday through Saturday, and there is additional parking located in the lot across from the STEM building. Dining hours are Monday through Thursday, 5:30–10 P.M., and Friday and Saturday, 5–11 P.M. The lounge menu is served in the lounge and bar area, Monday through Friday, 11:30 A.M. until closing. Lunch is also served at Ursino Monday through Friday, 11:30 A.M.–2 P.M.
